Case Study: Make in India

The "Make in India" initiative, launched by the Indian government in 2014, aims to transform India into a global manufacturing hub. By simplifying regulatory processes, improving infrastructure, and enhancing skill development, the initiative seeks to attract foreign direct investment (FDI), boost job creation, and increase the manufacturing sector's contribution to GDP.

Key Focus Areas:

- Attracting investments in 25 key sectors, including automobiles, textiles, electronics, and defence.
- Enhancing the ease of doing business by simplifying compliance and reducing bureaucratic hurdles.
- Encouraging innovation and skills development through programs like Skill India.

Achievements:

- Increased FDI inflows and establishment of new manufacturing units.
- Improvement in India's ranking in the Ease of Doing Business Index.

7. The consumption of Rolex brand watches is viewed as a signal of status and wealth and whose price, expensive by normal standards, enhances the value of such a signal. If virtually everyone owns Rolex it is by definition not prestigious. The role-playing aspects and the social value of brands can be instrumental in the decision to buy. For a brand which satisfies an emotional desire such as Rolex brand, a product's subjective intangible benefits such as aesthetic appeal is clearly determining the brand selection. Rolex is derived partly from the technical superiority and the extreme care that takes place during the production process. For instance, a Rolex Sea-Dweller works 1,220
